Robert Dybec

“Moments on the Journey”

December 1, 2008 – January 5, 2009

Reception: Sunday, December 7th; 2:00-4:00 PM

Robert B. Dybec is a native New Yorker and 14 year Huntington resident who has been photographing the world for over three decades. Early influences on his style came from the works of Ansel Adams and various photographers from National Geographic magazine thus inspiring him to develop an eye for scenery, outdoors, architectural and travel photography. Early works revolved around macro and close-up photography and experimentation in light and color manipulation. Mostly self taught and now in the digital age of photography, Robert has taken another step in his photographic life and is pleased to bring you his works of art and inspiration.

Moments on the Journey - From the artists perspective:

“Everyone’s life is a journey through time. For a photographer or anyone who takes photographs, a single photo represents a moment in time. A moment on the journey through life. The photograph has the ability to evoke memories and emotions about events during our journeys that stimulate our senses to the fullest. The smell of the Italian feast, the cool breeze coming over the mountain, the sound of the wind or birds in the forest, the incredible colors of a sunrise or an Autumn landscape. Vacations, weddings, parties...life”.
