Kate Kelly “NEWSPRINT(s)” May 25 – June 20, 2007

Reception: Saturday May 26, 2:00-4:00 PM

This new body of work from Kate Kelly, entitled Newsprint(s), can best be described as digital montage. Drawing from newspaper headlines, current political and cultural events, etc., she scans, downloads, alters and combines images. Each finished piece uses upwards of ten, twenty and thirty different images - some clearly politically charged, others more surreal in tone, encouraging viewers to “draw” their own conclusions. As poet and visual artist, Kelly often incorporates words into her visual art. These “Newsprint(s)” are printed on archival watercolor paper or premium luster photo paper, using archival inks.
