Victoria Gulino

“Art Alchemy”

November 2-December 8, 2006

Artist Reception: Sunday November 12, 2:00-4:00 PM

As artist and art teacher, Victoria Gulino's journey has embraced art as a path to self-discovery and transformation, where the process is as important as the product created.

This exhibit, entitled “Art Alchemy”, reflects Ms. Gulino's experience of people, places and culture, her deeply felt connection to nature and animals, and a transpersonal perspective. “Studying art forms of many cultures, as well as art forms in nature, it becomes evident that there is more connection and commonality between them than separation. Everything is connected energetically. Life can be experienced as connections infused with wonder.”

A certified art teacher, Ms. Gulino has taught in day treatment programs, public schools and corporate child care. She provides her young students with “aesthetic experiences and a visual vocabulary that will enhance their perception of the natural and built world, and develop their ability to experience beauty in the simple as well as complex designs they encounter in everyday life”. She nurtures children's natural, direct approach to art and gives them “the tools to use art as a medium for self-expression.”

As a faculty member of The New York Psychosynthesis Institute, Ms. Gulino has integrated her training in art, psychology and spiritual growth into a process she calls “Art Alchemy”, classes which assist adults and children in self-discovery, stress reduction and healing through art.
